Features Explained

INSURANCE ENDORSEMENT CONVERTS FARMERS HOME LOAN NOTES INTO U.S.-GUARANTEED INVESTMENTS

Two acts of Congress (the Housing Act of 1949 and the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961) authorize the Farmers Home Administration to sell private investors its loan notes under a full U.S. Government guarantee both as to principal and interest earnings.

That guarantee is embodied in an "insurance endorsement" the agency attaches to each note purchased by a private investor. The guaranteed yield includes interest earned on the note, plus a premium interest paid the investor by the Government. The annual payment to the investor also includes an amortized portion of the principal.

Farmers Home insured notes thus acquire status as investment fully and unconditionally supported by the faith and credit of the U.S. Government.

INTEREST RATES TO INVESTORS

Earnings offered investors in Farmers Home insured notes are consistent with prevailing rates on the money market.

Interest offerings vary according to length of time for which the private investor commits his funds—higher rates for longer term commitment. The agency attempts to sell for longer terms. Most loans are written for from 33 to 40 years.

NO MAXIMUM LIMIT ON INVESTMENT

Blocks of notes may be purchased in any amount from the Farmers Home Administration's National Finance Office. The minimum investment is $10,000.

DURATION OF INVESTOR'S COMMITMENT

Investments may range from 1 through 25 years. Most are for terms of 1, 3, 5, 10, or 25 years.

OPTIONS TO EXTEND INVESTMENT

Investment agreements between the agency and investor include a "repurchase" option for the investor. His decision whether to renew his investment or sell a note back to the Government may be made at any time within 1 year after the fixed period for holding a note has expired.

Interest earnings continue at the contract rate while the investor holds a note during the 1-year option period.

Within the option period the investor has three choices :

- (a) Sell the note back to the Government at any time during the option period. The investor will be paid the full amount of unpaid principal balance, plus accrued interest.
- (b) Extend his holding with a new insurance endorsement for another fixed period, on terms offered by the agency at the time of reinvestment.
- (c) Agree to hold the note, at a lesser rate, until the note is paid in full, refinanced, or otherwise liquidated. Under this type of agreement, the Government makes no repurchase commitment but the note is still insured.

INDIVIDUAL NOTE REPLACEMENT OPTION FOR LONG-TERM INVESTOR

For every investment for a term of 15 years or more, the agency attaches to the insurance endorsement a rider giving the investor an additional option: He may have a called or fully paid note replaced with another note at the same contract rate he received on the old note. This helps the long-term investor maintain his anticipated cash flow.

BORROWER SERVICED, INVESTOR PAID BY GOVERNMENT

All dealings with borrowers, including loan making, loan servicing and collecting, are handled by the Farmers Home Administration. No charge for these services is assessed the private investor.

The investor, whose payment is fully guaranteed by the U.S. Government, receives payment directly from the Government by U.S. Treasury check. Annual installments of amortized portion of principal plus interest earned are remitted to investors on January 31, regardless of whether the Farmers Home Administration collects on schedule from borrowers. This annual schedule of payment is varied only when a note is paid off in full. Final payment whenever made is remitted promptly.
